

30th June 2017

Unique Users : 200,000

Hotels

Travel News: 17 Reasons to Travel in July 2017

Courtesy White Desert Antarctica

White Desert Introduces Private Jet Service

White Desert, the only luxury camp in Antarctica, has introduced private jet service from Cap Town to Antarctica. Guests can now fly to the White Continent in the utmost comfort and style with a maximum of 12 guests per departure. For the first trip, scheduled for November 2017, a Gulfstream jet will fly guests 2,485 miles over the icepack of the Southern Ocean before landing on a specially prepared blue ice runway. During the flight, guests will be served sush and wagyu beef tartare, complemented by cocktails garnished with thousand-year-old glacia ice from Antarctica. The flight is carbon neutral and White Desert is running the service in line with strict ecological guidelines. Private jet trips will be available for the White Desert's signature, eight-day Emperors and South Pole trip, the four-day Ice and Mountains adventure and the Greatest Day, a private chartered one-day trip to Antarctica.

From $32,000; white-desert.com.